

AubPoem Newsletter

Let's hope I get this right

Hi Friend

All right yawl, this is my first official newsletter. I am Aubrey E. Drummond just in case I didn't introduce myself to you. You signed up for my newsletter and all those other things I wrote that I thought were what you wanted to hear, I found out I was wrong. I realized that I didn't know what the hot 'dogs and hamburgers' I was doing. (how's that for not swearing.) kept asking myself since I was writing the same thing that I was posting to the various social sites would anybody want to read my newsletters? I decided to find someone who knew how I should go about doing this. Well, I found two. David Gaughran and Tammi Labrecque, I took their courses. (Oops, I just noticed I haven't yet finished the Starting from zero course. (Better get on that.) And now dear reader let me introduce you to the New AubPoem Newsletter.

Now I will be writing about me and the things I'm into. What I'm reading and books I liked and recommend for you. It may not all be poetry and I will try not to bore you. Although I am writing about myself so, no promises there. On occasion, I will mention my latest projects too. After all, let's not kid ourselves I want your eyeballs on my books too.

So, there you have it my First Official Newsletter, and for those of you who have stuck with me this long I'm offering a gift. The same one I'm giving away to new sign-ups. Nothing. (No, I'm joking, that's the title of my new book. Available only to those who sign up for my newsletter.)
